

Seydisfjordur (Iceland)

SYF-03 - Chasing waterfalls

Duration : 2h30

Price: 90 €

The nature surrounding the town of Seyðisfjörður is a spellbinding display of waterfalls, mountains and the ocean. The hiking tour provides an excellent opportunity to explore the beauty of the Icelandic landscape.

This guided walk takes you on a hike up to a part of the Vesturdalur valley near Seyðisfjörður. The valley is a protected nature reserve due to its remarkable flora.

Upon reaching the abandoned town of Vesturdalseyri, you'll see the ruins of the former town. The town was inhabited for roughly a century (1851-1963). Originally there was a whaling station and it was home to one of the largest cooperatives in the county. Despite its beautiful and sunny location the town declined with the last inhabitant leaving it in 1963.

As you continue your journey, walk past a series of beautiful waterfalls that will provide ideal photo opportunities.

You will then return back to the coach and return to the pier.

- This high-level hiking tour involves more than 2 hours of walking on uneven terrain. Participants should be in excellent physical condition. We recommend you wear good and comfortable walking shoes and dress in layers. This tour is conducted in English only.
